IV Therapies, Fundamentals

Mitch Ghen, DO, PhD | August 9, 2018 | $599

The Fundamental IV Therapies Course is designed for physicians, nurse practitioners, and other medical professionals looking to develop their knowledge of intravenous nutritional therapies. This course will cover the fundamentals of IV therapy, and expand on the use of vitamins, minerals, amino acids, and other unique parenteral compounds. Clinicians completing this course will have a thorough understanding of IV therapy, and the ability to immediately implement various IV protocols into their practices.

IV Therapies, 2-Day Advanced

Mitch Ghen, DO, PhD | August 10-11, 2018 | $1499

The Advanced IV Therapies course will provide the IV practitioner with the necessary tools to understand and calculate osmolarity and how to modify IV protocols depending on use of solutions; will introduce the IV practitioner to the history of, and multiple uses for IV Vitamin C, to advanced techniques of nutrition, including techniques for infectious disorders, inflammation, diabetes, neurodegenerative disorders and immune system support; will teach the practitioner to understand and employ advanced IV techniques for patients with compromised renal function, autoimmune disease and patients with challenged cardiac function; and to understand and employ elective difficult intravenous interventions for fatigue, adrenal support, pregnancy and addictions.

Low Dose Immunotherapy

Ty Vincent, MD | August 11-12, 2018 | $599 | VIEW SCHEDULE

Low Dose Immunotherapy (LDI) is a remarkable treatment for allergies, most types of autoimmune disease and various chronic inflammatory disorders. More recently, through the work of Dr. Vincent, it has been found to be an extremely effective new treatment for Lyme disease and a growing number of immune-mediated and inflammatory conditions. Practitioners who employ LDA feel there is no better immunotherapy technique available anywhere, especially for difficult and complex immune/inflammatory problems.

Whether you are a prospective user of LDA/LDI or one who has used it for many years, you will leave this course with knowledge far beyond your expectations and with new treatments you can employ immediately.
