

Ty Vincent, MD

Ty Vincent, MD is an integrative physician in practice since 2005 in Wasilla, Alaska where he has a large multidisciplinary integrative clinic. He completed medical school through the University of Washington, and a residency in family medicine in Anchorage, Alaska. Dr. Vincent has gained additional training in acupuncture, Chinese medicine, environmental medicine, allergy and immunology, bio-identical hormone therapy, chelation therapy, hyperbaric medicine, integrative cancer therapy, Reiki and nutritional medicine.

Dr. Vincent has lectured nationally many times on the subjects of bio-identical hormone therapies, vitamin D, and low dose immunotherapy. In 2014, Dr. Vincent developed immune therapy techniques for treating chronic Lyme disease and a large number of autoimmune diseases with a high degree of success and safety. He has since been treating patients across the country with these disabling illnesses, and educating other practitioners in the use of this new therapy.

Dr. Vincent is married with eight children, and currently resides in Kona, Hawaii. He works from home, helping chronically ill people around the world via telemedicine consultation and sending Low Dose Immunotherapy to their homes.
